

October 9, 2009

Letters, Oregon

State is being trashed by wind companies

It is my belief that our state representatives and senators have not done their duties, and have failed to put a stop to the runaway trashing of this state by wind power companies.

There is a place for wind towers and then there are places that need to be protected from wind towers. Our governor has become obsessed with being the greenest governor in the world and does not care what is destroyed as he tries to gain this honor.

It is the duty of our legislators to call a special session and put a stop to this travesty, and not only this one but the one happening on the face of the Blue Mountains in Umatilla County. They need to protect our heritage, The Oregon Trail, the fish in the Walla Walla River, the deer and elk's critical wintering range (which is also the birthing area for these animals in the spring) and the Confederated Tribes of the Umatilla Indian Reservation's heritage areas, including their root and berry picking areas that are located on the face of the Blues.

James Burns

Weston

The East Oregonian

eastoregonian.com ^[1]

9 October 2009

URLs in this post:

[1] eastoregonian.com:

<http://eastoregonian.com/main.asp?SectionID=14&SubSectionID=50&ArticleID=98813>

This article is provided as a service of National Wind Watch, Inc.

<http://www.wind-watch.org/news/>

The use of copyrighted material is protected by Fair Use.